

TEXT FOR CLICKABLE THINGS

- coffee mug: "Ah, the mug has opinions.. interesting choice of morning affirmation."
- shoe boxes: "Wow, that's an impressive commitment to cardboard."
- pizza blanket: "That explains a lot..."
- food/drinks in drawer: "Of course... the ultimate italian survival kit"
- octopus: "This has definitely witnessed things.."
- camera: "Oh look a digital camera!"

PORTFOLIO

Editorial Design: Me if I were a Magazine

For this project, I created a personal magazine that explores my visual identity as a designer and reflects my passions, including travelling, cooking, music, and design. I focused on editorial design and typographical layout, experimenting with grids, hierarchy, and visual storytelling to create a cohesive yet expressive publication. Using Adobe InDesign, Illustrator, and Photoshop, I translated my personality and interests into dynamic page layouts that balance structure with creativity. Through this process, I deepened my understanding of editorial principles, bettered my technical skills, and got the opportunity to express and explore my style as designer.

➡ Black poster on the wall -> PDF of the magazine

Video Editing and Motion Graphics: Body Planet Commercial

For this project, I explored video editing and motion graphics to create a commercial for Body Planet, a gym focused on wellbeing, community, and personalized experiences. I conducted research on fitness and non-fitness campaigns to understand how successful brands communicate values through rhythm, sound, and visual storytelling. Using Adobe Premiere Pro and After Effects, I combined copyright free footage with UI animations, kinetic typography, and motion design to highlight both the gym's atmosphere and its digital features. I developed a storyboard and shot list to structure the narrative, guiding the viewer through an emotional arc from chaos to calm. Throughout the process, I iteratively tested visual direction, pacing, and sound to ensure coherence and engagement.

➡ Laptop -> Video on Youtube

Visual Identity Design: Rebranding Body Planet and redesigning its Website

For this project, I did a rebranding of Body Planet, a local gym, through the development of a new visual identity, Logo and digital interfaces for their Website.

The goal was to shift the perception of the gym from a performance-driven space to a more welcoming environment focused on wellbeing, personalisation, and community. Starting from research and competitor analysis, the project defined new brand values, a refreshed logo, color palette, and typography. These elements were then applied consistently across high-fidelity web and app interfaces, as well as promotional posters.

➡ Upper right poster (green) -> Prototype link